Alleged Violations of Plumbing Reg

Alleged Violations of Plambiug Regulations.

A number of plambers were attracted to the Police Court to-day by the trial of some very interesting cases of violations of the plambing regulations.

Mr. Stephen J. Bouis, a hardware and stovedcaler and tinner, was charged with doing plumbing work in putting up a range and connecting it with the boiler in a house, without having registered and given bonds as a plumber. After hearing the evidence Judge Snell dismissed the case, deciding that a stovedcaler had a right to put stoves in position, and in so doing did not invade the field occupied by a plumber, unless he made some radical changes in the plumbing. A simple connection, necessary to put the stove in position, was not a violation of the plumbing regulations.

Edward W. Dunn was tried for two charges growing out of laying a terracotta pipe and covering it up before it was inspected. The case was continued for one week.

It is hoped the end of the Star-Route trial draweth near. Merrick promises to quit to-day, I but it will be recollected he was only solns to need two days in the first place to masticate the defense, and if his health should be so inconsiderate of the feedings of the jury sud the country sa to hold out his wind machine may continue indefinitely. Besides that, Judge Wylle has his talk yet.

According to present indications we will have but two seasons this year overcoat and non-overcoat seasons.

The Law as to Pawnbrokers.

Wm. Smith, the pawnbroker, was before the Police Court to-day, appearing for his wife, who was charged with conducting a pawnbroker's business at No. 300 Ninth street northwest, and failing to keep a record, such as is prescribed by the law of the description of persons pawning articles at the establishment. The case grew out of the recovery at Mr. Smith's establishment, by Detective Raff, of a gold-headed cane stolen from Dr. MacArdie, and valued by him at $25. The pawnbroker's record showed the cane to be valued at $3, and that $2 was advanced on it and gave only a partial description of the man who pawned it. The Law as to Pawnbrokers.

Mr. Smith claimed that the value given of the gold-headed cane was a fair one and that the description was all that was re-

THE TROUBLES OF THE VETS.

Very Lively Proceedings at the Meeting Last Night. Meeting Last Night.

The regular monthly meeting of the Union Veterau Corps was held at their armory last night, sixty-five members being present. It was evident long before the meeting that trouble was brewing, as little groups of Veta stood in front of the armory discussing, excitedly, the financial difficulties into which the corps has recently become involved, an account of which was published in last Wednesday's CRITIC. Captain Thomason called the assembly to order, Mr. E. O. Caruana secretary.

The first business before the meeting was the question as to whether Comrades Ramsay, Shaw, Short, Ebert, Kelly, Hinds and Buckley should be allowed to withdraw their resignations.

The matter was discussed at some length and finally, on motion, the gentlemen

The matter was discussed at some length and finally, on motion, the gentlemen named were permitted to withdraw their resignations. This disposed of Lieutenaut Harrison then offered, "In the name of the disreputable members," the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas the Union Veteran Corps has reached that period in its history whon, in order to harmonite existing differences and promote fraternity among its individual members, an immediate change in its officers becomes necessary to retain the corps in the front rink as a representative veteran organization, and comes necessary to rotain the corps in the front rank as a representative veteran organization, and

Whereas we believe that these much desired results can be best obtained through the adoption of the resolutions herewith submitted, we respectfully ask that said resolutions be laid before the corps for action at the regular meeting on Juse 7, 1883.

Resolved, That the officers and non-commissioned officers, but of the line and staff, he requested to tender their resignations before the adjournment of the present meeting, and that the officers of any who fail to do so be declared vacant; that the corps then proceed to the slection of the following (keeping in view the good of the whole corps and disregarding individual interests in making the selection: One first lieutenant, two second lieutenants and the some number of non-commissioned efficers as at present provided for.

Resolved, That a committee of cloves be then appointed by ballot, without regard to rank, whose duty it shall be to take into consideration the subject of filling the vacancies of commandant and those on the staff. This committee shall meet and agree upon the perfons to be recommended to the corps for commandant and for the various staff positions, bearing fully in mind the requirements of the corps and who can best subserve them. Upon notification to the officer commanding that an agreement has been arrived at, the said commanding efficer will at once call a special meeting of the corps to act upon the recommendations of said committee.

Several gentlemen asked for the reasons for offering the resolutions, and Lieutenant for offering the resolutions, and Lieutenant special meeting of the corps to act upon the recommendations of said committee.

Several gentlemen asked for the reasons for offering the resolutions, and Licutenant Harrison explained by saying that the corps was falling off steadily; that Captain Thomason's financial transactions with the corps were very unsatisfactory, large sums having disappeared without any vouchers being forthcoming for the money. "He has lied to others about the money received," he exclaimed excitedly, adding that he could not serve under any man he had no respect for, and forty-two others thought the same way.

Comrade Lynch said he was sorry the trouble of the corps had been ventilated in the newspapers and suggested that some amicable settlement of the difficulties be arrived at. He proposed the appointment of a conference committee of three or five men from each fide, who could retire and settle the trouble. Comrade Lynch did not believe Captain Thomason had ever touched a cent belonging to the corps, but the corps had winked at the defalcation of a member who was known to have defrauded it.

Comrade Urell rose to a point of order and said the alleged defalcation (Callan's) referred to by Comrade Lynch had never been proved.

Conrade Edgar made an able and elo-referred to by Comrade Lynch had never been proved.

Comrade Edgar made an able and elo-quent speech, in which he opposed the resolutions, saying they were called an en-tering wedge in behalf of peace, but they were not. He claimed that the constitu-tion provided no tenure of office and officers could stay in forever unless an amondment was made. He made the point of order that an amendment could only be submitted in accordance with article eight of the con-stitution. stitution. Captain Thomason ruled that the point

Captain Thomason ruled that the point was well taken, and Comrade Molden appealed from the decision of the chair. A vote was then taken on the appeal, and Captain Thomason was sustained by a vote of 34 to 20. This tested the relative strength of the Captain and the malcontents, and upon the vote being aunounced, Lieutenant Harrison shouted: "Comrades on the left, retire and form a new corps. Let us leave a man who embezzles our funds."

A move was made for the door amid great on the left, retire and form a new corps.

Let us leave a man who embezzles our funds."

A move was made for the door amid great confusion. But sober counsels prevailed among the malcontents and the stampede was stopped for the time at least.

"Gentlemen, you fought once against secession," called out Licatenant Edgar; "don't secede now,"

"Let them go," said Captain Thomason. Comrade Bliss made a short speech, in which he favored standing by the resolution, but to do it in order.

Comrade E.D. Brennan said he would not associate with a thief if he knew it. He thought it an honor to be associated with the man who was the father of the Union Veteran Corps in this city. While in the Adjutant-General's office he had seen Captain Thomason's record, and was satisfied he could do no wrong to any one.

Comrade Urell said there was no question but that there was dissatisfaction in the ranks. He did not, personally, believe that Captain Thomason had done any wrong, but the vote, which, without the staff officers who were interested, would have been the reverse of what it was, showed there was something wrong. He moved that a committee of five, composed of Comrade Harrison, chairman of the finance committee; Comrade Simmons, financial secretary; Comrade Hoover, treasurer, and Comrades Corson and Lynch be appointed to take into consideration and investigate all matters of a financial character, and report at the next meeting. ters of a financial character, and report at into consideration and investigate all matters of a financial character, and report at the next meeting.

An adjournment was moved pending this motion, and was declared in order by Captain Thomason.

Here another move was made for the door, Comrade Urell denouncing the adjournment as a cowardly net. A vote was taken and the motion to adjourn lost.

The previous question was then considered and the committee appointed.

While putting this Captain Thomason said, "I want to say one word here. I have been assaided most villainously. My accounts and vonchers have been twice examined and found correct. [A voice, "That's a lie."] This thing has been sprung on me, not only to injure me here, but to damage my family."

"So help me God!" exclaimed Comrade Urell, "I have not sprung it on you. The idea came from my heart, without a word of consultation with any one."

A desultory discussion arose on Comrade Hickman's demand for the name of the officer who inspired the epithet "disreputable element" as applied to the malcontents in the press, and the expression, "The better elements are with Captain Thomason." This was closed by a motion to adjourn put by a member of the malcontents.

No Excuse for the Action of the Attorney-General.

Wash Cor. Bait. Sun.

Now that the papers in the Ottman case have been made public it is shown that there was really less justification for the action of the Department of Justice than had been supposed. The whole matter will be thoroughly investigated when Congress meets, and public curiosity will not be satisfied until it is known exactly what were the industries and public curiosity will not be satisfied until it is known exactly what were the indusences which caused the voluntary surrender by the Government of its own money and how that money was divided among the parties concarned. Mr. Bliss, Mr. Crowley and the other counsel know just say well as they know anything that the money which they received for Ottman ald not belong to him, but to the Government, from which it had been stolen. It seems that according to the peculiar code or othes when it is a complete of the counsel in the Ottman case who indused the bounsel' in the Ottman case who indused money to those who had stolen it, and then retained the House who had stolen it, and then retained the House share of it full factor and the retained the House share of it for the bandsome thing they have made of the file and then retained the House share for the handsome thing they have made of the file that the seam is no possible excess for the action of the Attorney-General. It is a crave question, indeed, whether he has no unwritten history in the case.

The work of driving piles on the Potomaz fate is nearly completed, and the greater portion of them have been covered with cross ties and rails, and soon the dump cars will be able to encircle the entire flats and have the mud dug by the dredge boats. The piles for the long treste extending from the Arsenat to the Long Bridge have all been driven, and only a short distance remains to be covered with ties, enabling cars to haut mud from any portion of the Washington channel. The trains have for some time been running over a large portion of the southern end of the flats. Yestorday afternoon a number of boys attended to mount the cars on Virginia avenue and ride, but the watchman objected and attempted to drive them away. The youngsters regarded this as an infringement of their liberties and began stoning the watchman, who, after a vigorous contest to maintain his position, succeeded in capturing two of the urchine and carried them to the First Precinct Station. Nothing can be more dangerous than for boys to mount passing trains, and niless this practice is checked, a serious accident will fixely occur.

The regulations against swimming on the river front will be strictly enforced this summer, and the urchins who attempt to violate the law will find themselves in collision with the police. Boys have commenced already to watch for an opportunity and go in swimming when they think they can escape arrest. Yesterday afternoon a large number of boys stripped and began swimming at the Seventheire wharf, in full view of the passenger eteemers. But they did not enjoy the aqualic eport long before they were discovered and two of the leaders captured by Officer King, and hauled to the station-house for an andience with Judge Snell.
